

Luke Shears

My name is Luke and I present this series of images that are a small selection from my personal archive. The wild times that we find ourselves in can prove very stressful and having an outlet to lose yourself, I feel, is extremely important. Photography gives me that opportunity. Using analogue methods, it slows down the photo process and as a result slows me down. Being out in the woods taking pictures of trees is my favourite thing to do and that is ultimately my driving force for producing work, engaging with nature and capturing it in my own way.
